A Message from John Talley

One of the keys to life seems to be striking the proper balance. For the health conscience it's exercise and diet, for the sports fan, or participant, its 1) hitting and pitching, 2) offense, defense and special teams, 3) a draw and a fade or short game and full swing game, (you knew golf had to get in there...) 4) building strength and adding flexibility, 5) hymns, psalms and spiritual songs and the list could go on. Google a balanced life and you get a ton of options!

Google any combination of a balanced Christian life and you get a ton of options there, too - church life, personal life, spiritual life, etc. I think it's easier to discover, evaluate and set goals for balance when we back out of the daily details we find ourselves in and think about what we're doing, what we've done and what we want to do. Our staff has begun setting a day aside for calendaring, etc. We get away from the office to plan. Yes, the plans change but getting away and looking at those plans and calendar help us see strengths and needs. For me personally, getting out of town helps. Even when we go to visit family, I can take time to set new goals and evaluate areas of my ministry.

Based on our spiritual gifts and talents, we all have tendencies. Some are more outward focused and some more inward. The balance in our life comes when we work on more than our own desires but God's desires for us. Rick Warren lined them out well with his Five Purposes: Worship, Fellowship, Discipleship, Ministry and Evangelism. If we all seriously made priority for those five areas of our life we would be personally fulfilled and our church would be maxed out! Sometimes attempting to focus on five things can be challenging. When that happens, try two things...focus on simply honoring God with your life and making Him known. Honor Him daily with knowing God more through His scripture, in worship and in a small group. Make Him known through intentional choices and in casual conversation. Why is it so easy to discuss our favorite sport, team, diet or work-out rather than a discussion about God and what we learned today as we spent time with Him?

Another way to achieve balance is applying the Fruits of the Spirit to our lives: love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control. (Galatians 5:2-23). Speaking of the Fruits of the Spirit... Camp Sonshine is next week! Every morning kids will gather at church with Dennis and Youth leaders to learn the Fruits of the Spirit and apply them while enjoying daily adventures. Sign your child up today!

PRAYER & PRAISE

Join us on Wednesdays @ 6:30 pm for an extended time of praying, praising and the pastor's new teaching series, What is the Kingdom of God?

Just as our spiritual bodies are not complete, our physical building isn't complete either! The closing of our I-45 property is imminent and architectural plans are completed and have been submitted to the city. Thank you for your patience and flexibility as we continue meeting in an incomplete facility!
