A Message from Robert Miller

A Not So Bad Church

My wife Anne and I enjoy standing at the back of our foyer to greet folks on Sunday mornings. We especially enjoy meeting and visiting with our guests. Since moving to our mall location, I have received many interesting comments from some millennials that have visited our worship service. Just a few weeks ago, a young lady made a point to come up to me and say, "this wasn't nearly as bad as I thought it was going to be." I think this young lady came with her grandmother and probably felt some pressure to go to our church. I realized in her way, she was paying our church a compliment. She expected that she wasn't going to like our worship, and she didn't hate it. I have had other millennials make the following comments to me: "I enjoyed it, and I didn't think I would." Another one said, "this was way better than I thought it was going to be." In each instance, I understood that these young adults were positive about the worship experience. I thanked each one for their uplifting comments, and I was impressed that they sought me out to tell me.

I am on social media, and I read the negativity about the church. Daily, there are posts and tweets about how bad the church is especially the evangelical church. Many on social media implore people to leave the church. Truthfully, I don't think most churches deserve the bad press. Are we perfect? No. Are we living up to our ideals? No. But I believe that in the time we live in that the church is as close to the Kingdom of God as we will get until Jesus comes back. Most church members I know are folks who genuinely want to worship God and follow the teachings of Jesus. Most in the church are forgiving, loving, and encouraging. I will take our Not-So-Bad church any day over anything else I know!
